

THE GAZETTE.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 18.

Senator Spooner, of this state, has been chosen chairman of the senate committee on cost of defense.

There will be a total eclipse of the sun in 1887, but the biggest eclipse will be in the first week of November 1888. It won't require a smoked glass, either.

Senator Cheney, of New Hampshire, has traveled much in Europe, and says that the more he sees of other countries the more strongly he believes in the American tariff system.

Here is a pointer for the democratic papers which have been abusing republican senators for not passing the open executive session resolution. Only six democratic senators voted for it, while sixteen voted against it.

The Ohio supreme court has decided that the Dow law, which places a tax on all saloons and makes it a lien upon the property in which liquors are sold, is constitutional in all its features, and that it is not a license law within the meaning of the state constitution, which forbids granting licenses for the sale of liquors.

Congressman Oister, of Alabama, has introduced a bill in congress which prohibits the appointment of committees to attend the funeral of deceased congressmen. The thirty free trade democratic members who were defeated last month will have to go to the political cemetery without the solemn tread of a congressional committee.

The United States not only have more wheat and more breadstuffs to sell this year than last, but are finding foreign purchasers for their surplus. The total export of breadstuffs for the month of November just closed amounted to $12,598,841, as against $7,149,785 for the month of November, 1885. The value of the export of breadstuffs for the first five months of the present fiscal year was $95,215,108, as against $42,821,554 for the same period of 1885. For the eleven months of the current year ending November 30, the export reached $135,075,674, as against $119,572,838 for the first eleven months of 1885. A country in which bread is so cheap and plenty and which has so large a surplus to sell to poorer neighbors must be a pretty good country in spite of the assertions of socialists and anarchists to the contrary.

We presume the editor of that democratic paper down in North Carolina, has been disappointed in getting an office, therefore his temper can be plainly accounted for. But with the bitterness in the foregoing paragraph, there is some truth. Cleveland is not so bad as some of his political friends try to make him out to be. He is among these first. He is trying to please hungry democrats, conservative democrats, and the muggwumps. He is working hard in this hard business, and while he gives such a small share in his administration, he does not please all for that is not a human possibility. But Garland is bad, exceedingly bad. Bayard, who made a good senator, is weak as a secretary of state.

If the democratic papers of the south expect anything more than they have already received from this administration, they will be disappointed. An administration that has no definite policy and no fixed principle to guide it, can never become popular. At first, Mr. Cleveland thought he could be better than his party—that is, better than his party bosses—but he failed as necessarily he must, and that is the reason why there is hardly a metropolitan democratic paper which gives the president its cordial support.

The president is doing the best he can to fairly distribute his civil service reform among the factions that elected him. To be sure, when distributed, it is queer reform, but it is the best the president can do.

The sales of The Century Magazine have gone up over 30,000 copies in six weeks, since beginning the Life of Lincoln. A second edition of December will be issued on the 15th. A veteran New York publisher predicts that the permanent edition of the magazine will go beyond 300,000 before the completion of the Lincoln history. The January installment, which is said by the editors to be of most surprising interest, occupies thirty pages of the magazine, and reads of Mr. Lincoln's settlement in Springfield, his practice of law in that city; the Harrison campaign; Lincoln's marriage; his friendship with the Speeds; of Kentucky; the Shields duel; and the campaign of 1844. The illustrations are numerous, including portraits of Joshua Speed and wife, of Mrs. Lucy G. Speed, Milton Ray, President Harrison, General Shields, William H. Herndon (the law partner of Mr. Lincoln), and Mr. Lincoln himself, from the photograph presented by him to Mrs. Lucy G. Speed, in 1861. Pictures are given of the house where Lincoln was married, also the house where he lived after he was married.

A DEMOCRATIC OPINION.

The North Carolina Democrat, which did some hard work for the president two years ago, has changed its tune, and in a late issue it says:

Secretary Bayard is beyond all doubt the biggest political failure in the American continent in either party except Grover Cleveland. Lamar comes next, then Garland, then the balance of the cabinet. Cleveland's stool pigeons. We prayed to God for more than twenty years to spare our life until we could see the democratic party restored to power. Our prayer is now, and will be, that our life may be prolonged until we shall see Cleveland and all who think and believe as he does driven from place and power. God in his mercy and providence will not permit a party led and controlled by such men as Cleveland and Bayard to control this great country long.

at a time. A party controlled by such men never was and never will be a friend to the people.

LOSING PATRIOT AT LAST.

For many weary months the struggle of reform Harper's Weekly has stood by the president through thick and thin. No matter how many assaults the administration made in the matter of civil service reform, George William Curtis said the performance was good. No matter how forbidding was the taste of the bill, he declared the meal was delicious. And so the Harper's went on month after month encouraging the president in the peculiar reform. But when Mr. Cleveland said that the making of democratic speeches by a democratic office holder during a campaign would be overlooked, but that the making of two well tempered republican speeches by a republican office holder was "pernicious activity" which should cost the republican his official head, Mr. Curtis' confidence in the president's system of reform began to be shaken, and the current number of the Weekly contains the following editorial comment on the president's action:

The only fair and practicable rule for office holders during their term of office is that they shall not exercise a right of individual rights. This rule the president has arrogated by the reinstatement of Mr. Denton, which is a reversal of the policy of reform, as is shown conclusively by the delight of republicans, who point to it as proof either of executive weakness or of a policy of the administration, building what they declare to be the sign of a surrender to the "spoils bosses" of their party. The confidence of reformers in the president's system of reform is a necessary stake, not in the president's convictions or purpose, but in the judgment. It is a stake which is in every way unfortunate, for while it does not really conciliate his democratic enemies, it does undoubtedly disturb and chill his independent friends. The reinstatement of Mr. Denton's speech, which was unknown when the president reinstated him, makes the reinstatement, upon the president's own statements in the Stone letter, a serious mistake, and if the sole root of the only circular is to be the reinstatement of Mr. Denton and the removal of Mr. Stone for the reasons alleged, it will be undoubtedly a damaging blow to reform.

The New York Evening Post, whose faith in the president's good intentions in civil service matters seemed to be steadfast as Gibraltar, is also losing its confidence in the administration. It begins to see a fact which is as clear as the sunlight, that the president is, and of necessity must be, in the hands of his political friends. This is the reason that Denton was restored and why Stone was not.

THE PREACHERS AND THE BALLET.

The other day the management of the American opera company which is now in Chicago, invited the clergy of that city to attend the performance at the Columbian theatre on Thursday evening, when "Galatea" was to be given, followed by "the grand ballet bal costume." Everybody knows that knows anything of the spirit and policy of the management of such performances, that the invitation to the Chicago ministers was simply an advertising dodge, in which there was not a particle of honor. The ministers took a common sense view of the situation and expressed their opinion on the subject of the ballet in a very free and commendable manner. Of course they did not attend. Not a clergyman representing the Baptists, the Presbyterians, the Catholics, the Methodists, the Congregationalists, or the Lutherans, was there. They did just right. They treated it with the contempt the performance deserves, especially the spirit which prompted the management to send the invitations to those whose office it is to uphold social decency and not to give countenance to indecencies on the stage.

Some of the papers which think that the poetry of motion can not be rightly enjoyed or properly understood unless the women appear in flesh-colored tights, are criticizing the action of the ministers for denouncing the ballet and refusing to attend the performance. They claim to believe that a good ballet dancer is a genuine artist, and that the artist can not be fully appreciated who is not fully appreciated in the manner of a lady. They also contend that to become an admirer of such artistic performances as appear in low costume and flesh colored tights, one needs to be a frequent attendant at the theatres at which such costumes are worn, and then, what at first seems like an immoral spectacle, will become an enjoyable piece of art.

Of course this all twaddle, and the papers that speak in that fashion pander to the influence of all that is indecent connected with the opera and the drama. The ballet is not put on the stage in connection with Galatea or with any opera because it belongs there, for it does not, but because it will draw a crowd which does not take easily to legitimate drama or to the higher opera. The ballet draws the vulgar, and financially it pays to present to such a crowd forty or fifty females in flesh colored tights, the "poetry of motion" not being thought of by the spectators whose eyes are fastened by the other and more prominent feature of the ballet. Therefore the condemnation the Chicago ministers expressed of such a performance was well timed, and both in matter and in spirit is to be warmly commended. It is an honor to the Baptists, to the Presbyterians, to the Catholics, to the Methodists and to the Lutherans, that their ministers honored their calling and dignified their office by treating the ballet with contempt. It is not a part of the standard opera or of the legitimate drama, and should not be attached to them for mercenary motives.

ROTTEN AND WRECKED.

A MARINE DISASTER DEVELOPS A CASE OF CRIMINAL GREED.

Forty-Two Sailors Sent to Sea in a Worn Out Ship, of Whom Thirty Will Never Return—Driven Ashore in a Fog the Vessel Goes to Pieces in a Short Time—A Life-Saver Declares It Nothing Short of Cold-Blooded Murder.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 18.—The whaling bark Atlantic was driven ashore below the Cliff house Friday morning and most of her crew lost. There was a heavy sea at the time of the disaster, and a thick fog prevented the wreck being seen from the life-saving station, so that the first known of it was brought to the station by the survivors. Capt. Warner made the following statement of the wreck:

"There was a heavy head-wind and no wind when we were towed out to sea yesterday. The currents were so strong that we could not get out of the swell. The sea was so heavy that our anchors would not hold, and we were dragged astern and struck at 2:30 a. m. Friday. The immense waves were washing the men overboard all the time. The vessel went to pieces in a short time. We succeeded in lowering two boats, but both were capsized before getting two boat lengths from the vessel. It was pitch dark and foggy. In the first boat were Z. H. Doty, first mate; Anton Perry, third mate; four or five of the crew. That was the last we saw of them. In the second boat were myself, Second Mate King, and five men. We were swamped, but the sea carried us in until we touched bottom, when we dragged ourselves ashore. No signals of distress were given, as the fog would have made them useless."

When the captain reached the shore, though nearly exhausted, he managed to get to the life-saving station, about a quarter of a mile away, and the apparatus was at once brought out. The darkness and fog made it difficult to locate the wreck, and before a life could be saved over her she went to pieces. Out of forty-two persons on board only eleven have been accounted for. The rest are no doubt lost, though only one body has yet come ashore.

There are rumors that nearly all the crew were sleeping off wine when the disaster occurred. The number of persons on board as given above agrees with the custom house records, but the captain says there were only thirty-eight.

Adj. F. J. Blakeney, superintendent of the life saving service in this district, stated that after a thorough investigation he was unable to discover any incompetency or lack of vigilance on the part of the life saving crew. Calling attention to the timbers of the wrecked vessel, he said: "They are so rotten that a slight blow will break them. The same state exists in every part. It seems to me that a rigid examination should be ordered and those responsible be made an example of. At any rate, this is little short of cold-blooded murder."

A number of the survivors corroborate Maj. Blakeney's assertions. The vessel was an old one—built in 1851—and was owned by J. & W. R. Wing, New Bedford, Mass.

Crushed Under a Locomotive.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 18.—A fatal accident occurred on the Cincinnati Southern rail road yesterday morning. A freight train, when running at a lively rate when an axle on the engine broke. A freight, southbound, the great machine from the track and down an embankment, dragging three or four cars after it. On its fall the engineer, Christopher Toole, and his fireman were crushed beneath its great weight, being killed instantly.

Killed Engineer and Fireman.

GENESEE, Col., Dec. 18.—Early Friday morning the Salt Lake express on the Denver & Rio Grande struck a cow and was derailed near Gunnison, Colo. The engine and tender rolled over into the river, instantly killing Engineer Welch and Fireman McConnell. All the coaches remained on the track. None of the passengers were injured.

Disastrous Storms in Spain.

MADRID, Dec. 18.—Heavy snow-storms accompanied by strong winds are prevailing in the north of Spain. Many casting accounts and fishing smacks have been wrecked, and at Martin the gale uprooted a church, the flying timbers from which killed five persons.

Nine Men Drowned.

GENOA, Dec. 18.—A boat containing a crew of nine men was wrecked off this port Friday and all hands drowned.

THIS IN THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

Two Atrocities, and One of Them in the Name of Civilization.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 18.—Thursday morning just after midnight the house of John Swilling was burned down. Inside were Mr. Swilling, his wife, and three children, all of whom were burned to death. Francis Sanders was arrested, and confessed that he had crashed in the skulls of the sleepers, saturated the bed-clothes with kerosene, applied the match and left. Citizens seized the murderer, and after giving him five minutes to pray built a fire and roasted him to death.

Arrested for Infanticide.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—Miss Matilda Johnson, of Manitowish, Mich., was arrested in this city Friday for the murder of her illegitimate child, Dec. 13, the body of a newly born infant was discovered by boys in the Manitowish river. The infant's tongue protruded, and an examination showed that it had been strangled. Inquiry developed the fact that Miss Matilda Johnson, a domestic in the family of a well-known citizen, had become a mother Dec. 13, and had suddenly disappeared. As there was evidence that she had come to this city, the officials here were notified and the arrest made. Miss Johnson left Manitowish in company with her friend, Clara Anderson, but the latter has not been found. The wretched mother confessed at the police station that, made desperate by her disgrace, she had strangled her babe and, accompanied by Miss Anderson, went to the river and threw the body in.

LAND LEAGUERS LAUGHING.

Because the Police Made Such a Little Maul—The Fight to Go on—Foreign Flashes.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—Secretary Brady, of the Irish parliamentary party, states that a number of members of parliament have started for Ireland to take their chances in participating in the National league anti-rack-rent campaign, which they will prosecute vigorously.

The Nationalists are laughing at the stupidity of the police who failed to raid the rent office at Loughrea Thursday in not testing earlier than they did. Had they done so, they might have seized many thousands of pounds instead of the paltry sum they found when they arrived.

The Times says that the government has struck a powerful blow at the National league project of organized embezzlement, and in a leading article, offers strong objection to the admission Mr. Dillon to bail.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—A cabinet council was held in Downing street Friday, which lasted three hours. The chief business discussed was the question of British occupation of Egypt, and a circular note to the powers was approved, explaining the views of the British government upon the financial and military situation of Great Britain in Egypt. The action of the Irish executive against the National league's anti-rack-rent campaign was also approved by the cabinet.

DUBLIN, Dec. 18.—Mr. Dillon was confined to his room in Dublin, Friday, by the effects of an accident which overturned the jaunting car in which he was traveling from Loughrea to Athenry, Thursday, together with the horses he sustained from the rough landing he received at the hands of the police at Loughrea. When visited by a reporter he looked weak and worried, but appeared to be in good spirits. He expressed his intention of attending a National League meeting on the estate of the earl of Keshmarr at Keshmarr, on Sunday, and said that at the regular league meeting in Dublin on Tuesday he would declare whether or not he would give bail in the case against him.

Mr. Dillon's friends agree that he ought to give bail, thus compelling the authorities to try him at once, before his recognizances are estranged.

In reference to the raid of the police at Loughrea, Mr. O'Brien said that so far as their seizure of money was concerned, the police were completely outwitted. Prodding by his newspaper experience and actuated by the instincts of a live journalist, when he saw in and about the house a large number of policemen in plain clothes, he divined the reason of their appearance, and immediately made arrangements for the safety of the money and documents in his possession.

A large sum of money and many valuable papers, Mr. O'Brien said, were removed to places of safety from under the very eyes of the police, and the stupid fellows, pursuing the single idea of breaking up the gathering and bringing confusion upon the National league and their adherents, could not grasp the situation. The National league, notwithstanding the action of the government, intends to continue its campaign, but henceforth will observe more caution and circumspection than hitherto.

Mr. O'Brien will address a meeting at Longford on Sunday, and Sir Thomas W. Esmond, member for West Down, will speak at Gorey, County Wexford.

Jeremiah Jordan, member for West Clare, and Matthew J. Keane, member for Midleton, arrived at Keshmarr, County Clare, Friday, and will receive as trustees the rents of the tenants on the Vandaleur and Barton estates. The police have been made aware of their arrival and the purpose of their visit, but have as yet abstained from interference. It is expected, however, that action similar to that taken at Loughrea will be resorted to.

Tanglefoot on the Stage.

VIENNA, Dec. 18.—At the Carl theater Friday night a tanglefoot appeared on the stage in an intoxicated condition, and at once began joking the audience and bantering the orchestra. For a few minutes this excited excitement, and the drunken player, mistaking the laughter for approval of his conduct, deliberately embraced and kissed the actresses who were on the stage, about a dozen in number. The girls screamed, and the stage manager vainly attempted to induce the actor to leave the stage, but was finally compelled to ring down the curtain. The actor was dismissed from the theatre.

Accused of Moonlighting.

CORK, Dec. 18.—Dr. Brown and three Kerry farmers were tried in the Cork assizes Friday for "moonlighting" in Kerry and acquitted. When the verdict was brought in the crowd, which filled the court-room, cheered the jury and the defendant. The latter, after they had been formally discharged by the court, were escorted through the streets by a tremendous crowd, whose enthusiastic cheering was almost deafening.

Desperate Spanish Forgers.

MADRID, Dec. 18.—A conflict with revolvers occurred here Friday between a band of forgers and a body of police who were trying to arrest them. Several were wounded, both sides, but three of the forgers were arrested.

Victoria Contributions.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—The queen has donated £100 to the fund for the relief of the families of the men who were drowned by the wrecking of the three life boats off Southampton last week.

Declared a State of Siege.

BRINKEN, Dec. 18.—A minor state of siege has been declared in Brinken and Havana and in the district of Holist and the upper Tauas.

Whittier's Birthday.

AMESBURY, Mass., Dec. 18.—John G. Whittier celebrated his 70th birthday Friday at Oak Knoll, Danvers, where he received the congratulations of hosts of friends. The day was observed here by some of the schools in reading and reciting selections from his works, and also in the same manner by some of the literary societies.

—An evening with Dickens was enjoyed by the members and friends of the Court Street M. E. church literary club last evening. The roll call, was responded to with sentiments from his writings, and a very interesting sketch of the great novelist's life by Professor O. E. Koyas was followed by a miscellaneous program in which selections from "Black House," "Pickwick Papers" and "Old Curiosity Shop" predominated. Music, vocal and instrumental, was interspersed among the readings and recitations and the evening was made to pass very pleasantly.

—At the Baptist church parlors last evening the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor gave its first entertainment. The first number on the program was a selection on the organ by Miss Rose Rathbone. Following that came a declamation by Warren Behan, a recitation by Miss Lizzie Topleman; a song, "The Tar's Farewell," by Miss Jessie Dearborn; a reading by Miss Anna D. Tennant; a recitation by Miss Lou Herkimer, entitled "Lady Yearley's Guest," and a piano and violin duet by Mrs. M. D. Jones and Mr. Frank Brooks. The program was an interesting one and was thoroughly appreciated by those present.

—The stock of goods now on exhibition at Messrs. Hall & Farnsworth's, for the holiday trade, has never been excelled by this popular house, and compares very favorably with city exhibits. Their show cases are crowded with fine goods, while solid and plated silver in rich profusion reminds the caller of Christmas all the year round. The firm makes a specialty of diamonds and watches, and their stock in both of these lines is unusually attractive. With a model store and a complete line of goods, this old and reliable house are entitled to the liberal patronage they are receiving. Don't fail to examine their stock before Christmas.

We are showing an immense line of Handkerchiefs, Mullers, etc., including a number of decided bargains. Gentlemen's pure linen hem stitched handkerchiefs at 25 cents per dozen. An immense assortment of Ladies' embroidered linen handkerchiefs at 25 cents, many being worth up to 50 cents. Silk handkerchiefs at 25 cents, 38 cents, 50 cents, to $1.25. Cashmere mullers at 50 cents, to $1.25. Cream silk at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50. 6 bordered handkerchiefs for 25 cents. 3 hemmed, colored borders for 25 cents, etc., etc., comprising the best and cheapest line ever seen in Janesville.

—Prof. Leo Lesquerieux (?) has been heard from again. For four years now he has been prying upon people in various parts of the country taking the names, one after another, of chiefs of the government geological surveys. More than once he has promised positions in the survey to persons who have paid him liberally for the supposed favor. In a dozen places he has arranged to deliver lectures upon scientific subjects, and has been disappointed after making many dupes as possible. Recently he has been operating under the name and title of Capt. Clarence E. Dutton, whose name as a geologist and writer is well known. The first that was heard of him in Washington came in a letter to Capt. Dutton from Northern Michigan. (The writer said that he had driven a long distance through the rain and mud to hear his geological friend lecture and had been much disappointed to find that the lecture would not be delivered. He could forgive him that, however, but he begged that the two valuable books borrowed by the geologist from a clergyman, to whom he was introduced by the complainant, be returned as the clergyman held him responsible in the matter. A number of similar letters have been received. From some of them Captain Dutton has learned that "the ladies" will be very glad to see him again. The impostor is said to be quite a ladies man, and considerable correspondence in feminine handwriting is now coming into the hands of those dignified officials whose names he has assumed.

A poor unfortunate in Milwaukee is said to have succeeded himself to death. About four centuries, living in the light of the nineteenth century and never heard of Dr. Dill's Cough Syrup. Well, this is more than Egyptian deities.

—There has been a little complaint today about the ridge of snow left in the street by the street railway scrapers. This will be avoided in the future by the company. They were a little short of horses to-day.

—An address of special interest to young men will be given at the Congregational church Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, by T. Y. Gardner of Hudson, Ohio. This address has been received with great favor in other cities.

—The series of sermons now being delivered by Rev. Dr. Spalding, rector of Christ church, on "The Evidence of Belief in a Personal God," are unusually strong in character. The houses should be filled to-morrow.

—The W. D. Bailey & Co. creamery at Darien was completely destroyed by fire Thursday night, together with 700 pounds of butter. The loss was about $5,000, or about $1,000 above the insurance. It is said that the fire originated near the refrigerator.

—It is understood that the Concordia society and the double male quartette came near singing the same thing at the reception to-night. Both had fixed upon Becker's "March," and it was not until a late hour that the Concordia society learned of this and decided to sing "The Chapel" from Abt.

—While visiting a patient near the upper cotton factory last evening, Dr. Henry Palmer left his horse hitched outside. The animal became unfatigued, and started for home, being caught by Clifford Best, in the yard of J. E. Ady's residence. It is suspected that someone started to take a ride and was frightened away before getting fairly started.

—Those who came up on the accommodation last night, report that the train ran into a farmer's wagon at one of the stations near Chicago, and smashed it into kindling wood. When the trainmen went back they could find no trace of the team nor of the man himself, and they do not know whether anyone was hurt or not.

—Last evening a surprise pound party was given to Rev. Thomas Walker, pastor of the First M. E. church, at his residence, by the members of his church and congregation. There was a large gathering, considering the weather, and a very enjoyable evening was spent. The pastor and family express thanks for the many useful pounds left.

—As one of H. S. Woodruff's milk wagons was coming down Franklin street this morning, one of the horses tried to go on the left side of the iron work at the railroad bridge, while the other "kept to the right." As a result the pole was broken into several pieces, the front of the wagon somewhat damaged and milk scattered around very freely.
